S. Puts Forth old Monetary form Package

By Hobart Rowen

INGTON, Sept. 26 (WP).—The United States seized the on the question of monetary reform today, offering a int program that would end the special reserve role of and establish international rules to force changes in ry Secretary George P. Shultz presented the plan as a eas," rather than a "detailed hlueprint." But its revosweep, as well as its detailed nature, was a big surprise for his audience, the delegates to the annual meeting of the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund. Tha Shultz proposals go much further, for example, than the eight general principles for re-form that have emerged from European Common Market discussions.

The plan, approved by President Nixon, would involve the yielding up of some measure of national sovereignty over ex-change rates and reserve hold-ings to an international body. Officials readily conceded that there would be great resistance to this idea and they expect long and painful negotiations.

What is also in view is a shift in power on international financial affairs to a higher political level. Mr. Shultz said that "we would strengthen the voice of tha international community operating through the IMF." The implication was that the IMF itself should be reorganized. Some mentioned that even the name might be changed ..

After a "transitional period" necessary to arrive at "new monetary and trading arrangements." Mr. Schultz said that the The states would be prepared to undertake an obligation to convert official foreign dollar boldings into other reserva assets as a part of a satisfactory system such as I have suggested."

It is considered likely that some formal world monetary conference would be needed to ratify a new system it it is successfully negotiated. The ramifications are so many that the approval of national legislatures. the U.S. Congress, would be es-

. No one today was willing to suggest a timetable, but Mr. Shultz urged that an effort be made to produce "the main outlines of a new system In time for next year's IMF meeting in Nairobi, Kenya.

The average U.S. citizen would not see much of an impact from great changes in the monetary system, but he would stand to benefit from the absence of repeated monetary crises if the reforms worked.

Just how the various measures might affect the cost of travel and the price of imported goods remains to be seen, but it is clearly one of the objects of the wnole. idea to allow far more flexibility. in exchange rates, Changes in currency rates would therefore be more routine and more frequent. The underlying theme of tha American auggestion is this: In. contrast to the Bretton Woods monetary system, which allowed changes in exchange rates only when a nation's currency was in fundamental disequilibrium, the American plan calls for compul-sion to force changes, according to predetermined rules, "and under appropriate international surveillance," when things get out of line.

The most important test would be the level of a nation's re-serves. If they got to be too

Reversal Comes in 45-to-42 Vote

Senate Drops End-the-War Stand

By John W. Finney WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (NXT) -The Senate reversed itself today and rejected, by a vote of 45 to 42, an end-the-war amendment that it had adopted two months ago.

The vote marked a collapse of the anti-war movement in the Senate and left the administration firmly in command of the war issue in Congress. The Senate went on to approve, by a vote of 46 to 41, the foreign aid authorization bill that it killed last July after an end-thewar amendment was attached.

Kissinger, Hanoi Negotiators Hold 18th Secret Discussion

NEWARK, N.J., Sept. 28 (AP). -Private talks in Paris between Henry A. Kissinger, President Mixon's foreign policy adviser, and North Vietnamese representatives resumed today and have been extended to include a scssion tomorrow, the White House Press Secretary Ron Ziegler told reporters aboard Air Force I that the talks were continuing but declined to say whether the one-day extension indicated pro-

"I can't have any comment at all regarding the talks," he said. But he noted that Mr. Kissinger told a Washington news conference earlier this month that the Paris sessions were serious.

Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said that Mr. Nixon learned of the development while flying from Washington to New York's Kennedy Airport to launch a three-day New York-to-California campaign swing.

There was no explanation for continuing the sessions an extra day. It was the first time that tha White House had disclosed an extension of the talks. The session today opened the 18th secret round between Mr. Kissinger with Hanoi special adviser Le Duc Tho and Xuan Thuy, leader of the North Vietnamese delegation to the Paris

The White House had disclosed just nine hours earlier that Mr. Kissinger was in Paris to meet with Mr. Tho and Mr. Thuy, chief North Vietnamese negotiator in Paris.

This was their fifth private session since July 19. The meetiugs have been held roughly every two weeks, with the en ception of a monthlong break following the Aug. 14 meeting. After that session Mr. The flew back to Hanel and Mr. Kissinger took off for Saigon before returning to Washington.

vanced by Vietnam war critics in the Senate over the last two years to impose a troop-withdrawal policy upon the President. Through a cut off of funds, the amendment woul! have required the witherswal of all forces and the termination of American hostilities in Indochina within four months after its enactment, subject only to the concurrent release of prisoners of war.

At least outwardly, the Brooks amendment, on its third time be-fore the Senate, was defeated by absenteeism among its past supporters, including Democratic Sens. George McGovern of South Dakota, the Democratic presidential nominee; Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, William B. Spoog jr. of Virginia, and Harrison A. Williams jr. of New Privately, however, Senate doves acknowledged that they had little enthusiesm for organizing a new battle over the war issue and pushing through the Procke amendment. One Deuro cratic dove, for example, advised Son. McGovern that it was more important that he continues his presidential campaign in California than return for the vote.

For its part, the edministration, sensing that it finally had the upper hand on the war issue in the Senate, was well organized to defeat the Brooke amendment.

Vice-President Agnew was ordered by President Nixon last night to interrupt his campaigning to return to the Senate, just in case there was a tie vote which the Vice-President could break favor of the administration.

Norwegians' Rejection By Alvin Shuster

LONDON, Sept. 26 (NYT). -Europe reacted today with dismay and expressions of concern ever Norway's rejection of entry into the European Economic Com-In London, Paris, Bonn, Brussels and other capitals came empressions of regret as well as general agreement that the vote represented a psychological hlow to the effort to huld a cohesive community. Common Market of-ficials in Brussels said the results of the referendum were a clear defeat for Europe.

"As far as the community is concerned, it represents a setback on the way to European unity, said Sicco Mansholt, president of the Common Market Commission. "The commission hopes that time will give Norway the possibility to participate again in this great

'It should lead us to do our utmost to make the process of European construction of more di-rect interest to people by creating a real European democracy and a socially meaningful Europe,"

Several saddened officials in Europe said the vote underscored the loss of the momentum toward unity that was so evident in tha early days. In their view, the community, bogged down with differences over economic and monetery union and other issues appears to be drifting indecisively.

Fears on Danish Vote There were also fears that the referendum would now swing the vote in Denmark against entry. The Danish vote is scheduled for Oct. 2, and is a binding referen-

Denmark suspended all foreign-exchange dealings until after the referendum, to avoid speculation. The Danish government has warned that a "no" vote there may lead to a devaluation of the crown. Monetary experts said Denmark's suspension of foreign-exchange dealings could have re-percussions throughout Scandinavia in the next few days.

In Britain, which is scheduled to join the community on Jan. I along with Denmark and Ireland. anti-market forces knonched a last-ditch effort and demanded a similar referendum here. Of-ficials, noting that such votes are not in the British tradition, said Britain's plans were in "no way" affected by the Norwegian vote. Parliament bas already given final approval to British entry.

The first political falloot stemming from the voting in Norway is expected here next week, however, when the opposition Labor party holds its annual conference. Harold Wilson, the party leader, who opposes entry on the present terms, is trying to prevent the party from extending this limited opposition to a flat demand that Britain pull out of the market when Labor again comes to

Norway Faces Array of Woes: Political, Economic, Military

OSLO, Sept. 26 (NYT).—Nor-wegians today faced a whole party government would resign range of critical problems-political, economic and military—2s the result of their decision to reject membership in the European Economic Community.

On the day after a two-day referendum which produced a majority of 53.9 percent to 48.1 percent against the union with Common Market countries, there were these developments:

Swiss to Vote Dec. 3 On Ties With EEC BERN, Sept. 26 (Reuters) .-

The lower house of the Swiss parliament yesterday set Dec. 3 for a referendum on the industrial free trade agreement negotiated by Switzerland and the enlarged European Economic Community.

A simple majority of votes is needed for approval of the agreement. Observers expect a majority in favor of the accord. There is only a small core of nationalist opposition to the agreement, which is due to take effect Jan. 1. The cabinet yesterday decided to send a summary of the agree-a Fears were mounting that the strong anti-European vota would loosen Norway's defense and security ties to NATO and move it toward the neutralist position of its neighbor, Sweden. Speaking at a meeting of tha Textiles Workers Union in Oslo, Mr. Bratteli said the "110" vote meant that the kind of cooperation Norway had enjoyed with West European democracies for the past 25 years probably could not continue. "The country has lost a great opportunity. Now we will have to live with a great many uncertainties, and with much smaller prospects for economic expansion, Businessmen are going to find it very difficult to make investment

The stock market took the same vicw. Share values fell sharply on the exchange, with the exportoriented industries - aluminum, ferro alloys, shipbuilding and wood and paper prodocts—leading the decline.

Export Problem

Business believes that rejection of Common Market membership will give a decisive check to the Norwegian economy. The enlarged EEC takes 65 percent of Norwey's exports. Where Norway will find market for these goods once they are excluded by tariffs is not known. One possibility is a Scandinavian economic union that would join Norway, Denmark, Sweden, Finland and Iceland. Twice negotiations for such a union broke down because of Norway's and Denmark's interests in EEG membership. But now that Norway is out and Denmark may reject the EEC in its own referendum next Monday, prospects for the so-called Nordek union are again being assayed. Formation of such a union would be highly satisfactory to the conservative nationalists and

Agnew, McGovern Speeches Focus on Release of POWs

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26 (API. —Vice-President Spiro T, Agnew and Sen. George McGovern spoke out on the prisoner-of-war issue today as three U.S. airmen headed home from Forth Vietnam by way of China, Campaigning in Texas, Mr. Agnew accused the North Viet-namest of "using a handful of POWs to raise the hope of many American families" and added, They are just exploiting these few people for their own propaganda aims."

He said that if North Vietnam were really sincere, it would "deal with the duly elected government of the United States instead of with every dissident anti-war group who is attempting to make a contact in behalf of mainly themselver rather than of the prisoners.

Mr. Agnew said involvement of anti-war groups and "people who aren't in possession of the facts and the ability to negotiate" will eventually "impair our effort to get these prisoners released."

Sen McGovern, the Democratic presidential nominee, charged in San Francisco that Nixon administration interference had delayed the departure of the three former prisoners from Hanoi, He said the President was afraid that the men "will tell the awful truth about the war-that it is the bombing that keeps them in prison,

It was the third successive day issue. Secretary of Defense Malvin R. Laird said on Sunday, when the issue was raised, that Sen. McGovern was making himself "a spokesman for the enemy." But Sen. McGovern said today that in the last four years "the Nixon administration has done nothing for the prisoners but add to their numbers." He said the U.S. government cared more about preserving the South Vietnamese government than about the release of U.S. prisoners. But now in the last several days, we have seen that the Nixon administration is also more concerned about the opinions those men might express than it is about speeding their release." he said.

"There was disagreement on how the executive would be formed in the new assembly." Mr. Whitelew said. "The Unionists proposed a prime minister and cabinet, with the choice of committee thereafter. The other parties wanted the committee chairmen to form the executive. There was a disagreement.

Mr. Whitelaw added: "The value of a conference is a dialogue, and there certainly was a dialogue here." Asked about recent polls showing that a majority of British citizens wanted to withdraw soldiers from Northern Ireland, Mr. Whitelaw said emphatically: The otter political determination of Her Majesty's Government is absolute and great. We believe It is worth it. We are determined to fulfill it."

The significance of the tightlyguarded secret discussions in Darlington is that Mr. Whitelaw and the British government must work out the details for the future government of Northern Ireland-and the current discussions may form a basis for many of the new proposals.

Mr. Whitelaw was named administrator of Northern Ireland on March 24, when Britain took over direct rule of the province in an effort to end the surge of bombings and terror. With direct rule, the Stormont Parliament and provincial government were suspended for a year. Following the three-day conference, and within the next two months, Britain will make known the

EEC Regrets Norway Vote

There was even some -anger among some officials in Brusseis over what they saw as Mr. Pompidou's contribution to the market's defeat in Norway. They cited Mr. Pompidou's statement last week favoring the eventual entry of Spain into the market. a move that would be bitterly opposed by Norway.

Officials of some of the smaller market members, worried about a balance with the community's bigger powers, expressed anxiety over the loss of another "small" member. This view was reflected in comments by Norbert Schmelzer, the Dutch foreign minister and president of the market's Council of Ministers, who said he would have welcomed Norway's membership because that country has about the same international stature and the same democratic institutions as the Natherlands.

Soviet Approval

There was even talk of a slightly tarnished image for Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany, who recently flew to Oslo to lend his prestige to an embattled government there and to push for a "yes" in the referendum, Officially, the Bonn government said that it "noted with regret the negative result" but would continue to pursue policies toward a united Europe,

The Soviet Union, long an oppoment of the Common Market, welcomed, through Task, the Soviet press agency, the decision of the Norwegian people. Their vote, it declared, helped "the movement against splitting up into blocs."

At the Common Market headquarters in Brussels, officials said Norway's decision was not expected to have any major economic or technical impact on the enlarged community. While there was the concern over a loss of momentum, officials said the rejection alone should have little effect on the strength and potential of a community of 250 million people.

One relatively minor technical problem will be to revise the ac-cession treaty. But this can be done simply at a meeting of the Council of Ministers after Jan. 1. Officials said the most difficult task appeared to be a revision of

Man Found Dead, Gas Station, Club Bombed in Ulster

BELFAST, Sept. 26 (UPI) -A man was shot dead in Belfast today about the same time that firemen battled to save a bombblasted Roman Catholic church. The killing bore the eigns of a deliberate execution. The man, still unidentified, was dead of wounds in the head. A hood covered his head.

Firemen saved most of St. Bernadette's Catholic church in southeast Belfast, in a predonilnantly Protestant neighborhood by battling homb-caused flames into the early hours.

A bomb-laden car blew up at the church's front door late last night. There were no injuries. Later today, a bomb destroyed a gas station at Aghalane, in County Fermanagh, near the border with the Irish Republic. The station belonged to Steven Bullock brother of the Ulster Defense Regiment soldier who was shot dead with his wife by gunmen last week. The bomb caused no casualties, a spokes-

News Analysis

By Lee Lescaze HONG KONG, Sept. 26 (WP). The Philippines was the last close American ally in Asia which Washington could point to as an independent demogratic nation.

Now democracy has died there. least temporarily, and the United States is once again left to be surprised, or to say "no comment" or "tut-tut." It is once again an outsider whose influence amounts to very little.

South Vietnam was to be a democratic government until the democrat the United States supported decided it would be easier to rule without democracy's bob-bling constraints. Thalland never pretended to real democracy, but lest anyone miss the point, its rulers arranged a coup against their legislature last November that left them free from any parliamentary criticism.

Cambodia, in its post-1969 pro-American guise, has managed to shed its legislature while losing most of its territory to insurgent armies reinforced by North Vietnamese forces. Lass is governed by Prince Souvanna Phoume, who would fall in a day if the Americans chose another favorite. In Taiwan, the United States deals with a government that "lost" China in 1949 and is now undertaking a self-liberalization that in parallel circumstances would not distress the most reactionary Westerners.

Dependent on Aid None of these countries could have continued to exist as they have without American aid-both economic and military.

Now, according to President
Ferdinand Marcos, there is another country threatened by a Communist take-over—the Philippines. But this is the era of the Nixon rather than the Dulles doctrine, and the reaction of the United States to Mr. Marcos's decision is still uncertain. Washington is hoping that martial law will mean a more effective implementation of reforms in a nation where the per-capita $170 while the wealthiest have become some of the richest men in Asia, if not the world.

What happens in the Philip-pines is vitally important to the U.S. military posture in Asia. No bases are more useful than Clark Air Field and Subic Naval Station. There are fewer than 20,000 Americans at these bases, but without Clark and Spbic the American military position in

It is very hard for Washington to express displeasure with Mr. Marcon's politics without raising the issue of the bases. The United States pays no rent for either Subje or Clark, which together occupy more than 35,000 acres. But the last thing Mr. Marcos wants to do is force an American withdrawal, since be sees his ties with the United States as his strongest protection against Communist or any other revolutionary threat to his government. However, be and his aides have been increasingly vocal in their complaint that the United States ts doing too little for the Philip-

. The United States, whether it likes it or not, will have to spend more money here. If they don't help now, it will be more expensive later." Defense Seure-tary Juan Ponce Enrile said last month. "They [the United States] have as much stake in our survival as a nation as we have. Things could turn but as hadly here as they did in Cuba."

But in answer to pressure on the issue of the bases, the United States is likely to say: "Let us keep our bases, you run your country." It will mean running the country without the delight that Americans and Filipinos once took in comparing their demo-cratic legislative systems. It will mean, for Washington, confessing that its democratic model has not worked in the Asian country that admires us most.

Philippines' Martial Law a Blow to U.S.

The accommodation is one that should not surprise Washington after events in Asia over the last eight years. Once again, Washington has no real power to back up its unhappiness with the sus-pension of democracy. Mr. Marcos's declaration demonstrates that U.S. power in Asia is already minimal and thet Asian leaders will do with their countries what they went.

Personal Wealth

After all, Washington will say, Mr. Marcos is the elected president of the Philippines. Not only that, he is the only Philippine president to win election to a second term. But, by the testimony of many Pilipinos, he is now the most unpopular president the nation has ever had.

Why unpopular? Because he has been in office too long and because of his personal wealth, Filipines say.

Under martial law, the only newspaper allowed to publish, the Daily Express, is owned by Mr. Marcos. The only television channel allowed to broadcast has Marcos money in it. The public utilities, a major nower base of and a legislature unafraid to criticize the nation's president, now has only the Daily Express and a group of frightened legis-lators who will no longer say what they think.

North Vietnam, broadcasting an paper, Nhan Dan, signed The Commentator signifying an important policy statement—challenged the United States to replace the present government of South Vietnam with a govern-ment that it said neither side could dominate. It offered to "discard this [U.S.] fear" of an "imposed" government, which it called "absurd," and to deal with "the realities of the situation in South Vietnam.

Peace or War "Does the U.S. want peace or to continue the war?" the article said. "Dares it, together with the parties concerned," Nhan Dan continued, "put forth and carry ont necessary measures to insure that neither side dominates the political life in South Vietnam during the said transitional period? This appeared to be a solicita-tion by Hanoi for some form of international guarantee against an imposed form of new government in South Vietnam. The statement, which referred several times to the "U.S. government ... together with the parties con-cerned," did not say who these parties are or if the ambiguity was intended to include, for example, international guarantees by the United States, China and the Soviet Union or other nations.

The article aroused considerable terest inside the Nixon administration. There was no immediate official reaction to it, however, because of the general ban on discussing the secret nego-tistions on Vietnam

Although the article made no explicit reference to the secret talks in Paris that were last held on Sept. 15 between presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi Politburo member Le Duc Tho, it challenged the brief public remarks which Mr. Kissinger made at the White House on Sept. 16. Distortion Alleged .

The Nixon administration "distorted the Vietnamese people's stand," Hanoi said, through Mr. Kissinger's remark that the United States would "reject any move that would impose a particular form of government" in South Vietnam. This is an "absurdity," the article claimed, because, it asked rhetorically, "who has imposed its form of government' on South Victnam?"

What the United States is demanding, said the Nhan Dan commentator, is "the elimination of its opponent," and the maintenance of "the Saigon puppet administration," instead of the three-segment covernment of national concord" which was proposed by the Viet Cong in its most recent formulation on Sept. 11. The three segments would be the Provisional Revolutionary

Army Denies Race Conflict Curbs Failed

USAREUR Replies To Wis. Congressman

HEIDELBERG, West Germany, Sept. 26 (AP).—The U.S. Army Europe (USAREUR) yesterday denied a congressman's charge that the command has failed to curb racial conficts in the ranks. "USAREUR believes that pro-gress has been made and is continuing to be made in improving race relations and reducing racial conflict," a spokesman said. "Nevertheless, USAREUR is on record as stating the command still has a long way to go in fis efforts to achieve racial har-mony," he added. He was answering a charge 70 terday by Rep. Les Aspin, D., Wis., that "it is painfully obvious the Army's program to curb racial conflict is not working."

Rep. Aspin huttressed his charge with official Army figures listing five major racial incinents involving U.S. servicemen in West Germany in July and August, compared with 10 for sll of 1971. The incidents include three senarate mob fights between black and white GIs on Army posts, a hrawl involving black soldiers and German policemen and an alleged gang rape of two West German girls by 9 cr 10 black GIs.

Only One Factor

The USAREUR spokesman asserted that racial incidents were "only one factor of the overall posture."

"The number of racial incidents as a whole and the number of black-on-white assaults have decreased since the summer of 1971," the spokesman maintained.

He said that the five incidents mentioned in the Army summary "do not reflect a trend. They were not connected and each varied from the other . . . No steps command-wide have been introduced specifically because of the cited incidents, though local measures were taken." Rep. Aspin said in his statement that "unless racial harmony replaces the current brawling, stabbing and disorders, the effectiveness of the Army will be im-

But Harris Puts Nixon Lead at Nearly 2-1

Now Two Polls Show McGovern Is Gaining

By Jack Rosenthal

WASEINGTON, Sept. 26 NYT: -Two political polls reported yesterday that George Mc-Govern, the Democratic presidential nominee, had narrowed the lead for President Nixon found in previous surveys. There were differences of opinion between the poll takers, however, about the significance of the findings.

One new survey, conducted by Louis Harris and Associates, re-ported a Nixon lead of 53 to 31, a 28-point spread. This compared with a 34-point spread, 63 to 29, reported early this month.

"Statistically," Mr. Harris said,
"the change is significant. But politically, well, Nixon still has nearly a 2-to-1 lead."

The other survey, conducted for Sen. McGovern, said that he has cut President Nixon's lead to 23 percentage points and is thus near the goal set by his campaign managers. This survey offered several grounds for optimism, according to spokesmen at a news conference. They said they took the unusual step of making the findings public in an effort to counteract. the effect of earlier surveys showing e widening Nixon margin.

The Harris findings were based

1,668 in-person intervlews concucted Sept. 19 to 21. The 59-to-31 percent finding included people wbo described themselves as leaning to one candidate or the other.

The principal change found over the prior survey, Mr. Harris said, was a movement toward Sen. McGovern among voters under sge 30. In the prior survey, they were for Mr. Nixon. 52 to 43. The new finding, Mr. Harris said, was 47 to 45 for the President.

The McGovern camp found further grounds for encouragement in new evidence of tremendous volatility" in the electorate, eccording to spokesman, Patrick Caddell, head of Cambridge Survey Research, Inc. and Sen. McGovern's chief public opinion survey analyst.

Many Still Unsure

Mr. Caddell cited figures indicating that fully a third of the electorate had not yet finally settled on its presidential choice. This volatility, he said, gives Sen. McGovern a real chance in the November election.

The McGovern survey findings were: Mr. Nixon, 56 percent; Sen, McGovern, 34, undecided, 10. This represents e drop from the findings of a McGovern survey made in July that showed e 17-point Nixon advantage. But the new findings represented a substantial gain, Mr. Caddell said, over tho 34-point Nixon margin reported in public polls in late August. The McGovern findings were disclosed et a news conference called after The New York Times end Time magazine published the results of e 16-state survey con-ducted by Daniel Yankelovich, Inc., a leading social research concern. This found a 62-to-23 percent Nixon lead.

Mr. Caddell did not explicitly take issue with the Yankelovich survey, drawn from interviews conducted between Aug. 25 and Sept. 12, but said that "the public forgets" that polls taken three or four weeks ago "are a snapshot of that period," not of the present. Mr. Caddell's survey is "more up-to-date than those in the pub-

Mr. Vidal, the writer, wrote an article, "A Distasteful Encounter With William F. Buckley Jr.," that ran in the September, 1969, issue of Esquire. The title referred to their celebrated dispute on television a year earlier.

Mr. Buckley, the conservative

Eastern U.S. Survey Shows Nixon Ahead on War Issue

By Frank Lynn

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 (NYT). President Dwight D. Eisenhower -The Vletnam war, which was supposed to he Sen. George Mcio 1956.

The role of the Vietnam issue in the President's strong show ing in the survey is evident.

Mr. Nixon, who has been atern for failing to end the wer, was chosen by about helf of those surveyed as "the real peace candidate." Only a third folt that Sen. McGovern, who has probably been the leading spokesman for the entl-war cause for the last four years, was the peace candidate. The remainder were undecided.

Nearly two-thirds of the tri-state residents surveyed felt that the President was doing everything he could to end the war. although even more predicted that the war would not be settled before the election.

About half of those surveyed in the tristate area, and even slightly more in New York, saw the war as the major Issue feeing the country today. Vietnam clearly outstripped the next important issue, the economy, which was cited by shout a third of those polled.

Other issues that bave dominated recent state and local elections, such as law and order, taxes, drugs, recial problems and welfare, trailed far behind, at about 15 percent or less.

Norway Takes Time Out

enter the Common Market (and the promised resignation of the pro-market government) will not greatly affect the ability of Western Europe to enhance its economic unity. Even though there may be some domino effect upon neighboring Denmark, neither of the two Scandinavian countries are essential to the predominantly industrialized grouping formed under the Treaty of Rome. Nevertheless, the absence of nations with the advanced democracy and strong social order so characteristic of Scandinavia will he felt in Common Market councils, and the European idea the market embodies has suffered a blow.

As interesting as the resulte of the Norwegian plebiscite on the market, is the union of contrasts that achieved them. Leftists who regard the Common Market as an expression of the capitalist West joined with nationalists of the right, and purely parochial fishermen and farmers with idealistic environmentalists—an expression of precisely the kind of varied discontent that is eo common in so many mixed Western economies today, including the United States.

There are special Norwegian reasons for the reaction to the Common Market, however. Many of the people of that country. without necessarily casting back to the great

The refusal of the Norwegian voters to days of Magnus the Good, are aware of the difficulties they suffered for centuries under the rule of the Danes and then from 1814 to 1905, in personal union with Sweden under the Swedish kings. The latter experience, in which Norway had a large degree of actonomy, but one which varied with eircumstances and caused continual friction, probably has had considerable impact on recent generations. It is one, morever, that bears a particular resemblance to the kind of grant of sovereignty demanded by the Common Market now-and what may be expected for the future, if the European idea takes political shape.

It need not be assumed that this Norwegian decision will necessarily hold true for all time. If the Community works, if membership becomes more attractive, if the end of the Outer Seven economic bloc brings difficulties that eannot be made good by closer Scandinavian economic association, Norway may become willing to accede. That country, after all, suffered acutely by its isolation when Germany struck in 1940; it is not dominated by the same kind of selfrighteous neutralism that afflicts Sweden, and it is by that much more amenable to the logic of facts. Norway has not seceded from Europe. It has simply taken time out to consider what Europe really means.

Martial Law in the Philippines

In the Philippines, President Marcos has proclaimed martial law, justifying his act -unprecedented in Manila's 26 years of independence—by citing a Communist rebeilion "enjoying the active and material support of a foreign power." The move is not entirely a surprise. Just two months ago the country's defense minister, complaining that the United States was supplying insufficient military aid, declared that the scale of Communist guerrilla activity would soon force Washington to take more notice, Mr. Marcos's first step as military dictator was to arrest his legal political opposition. His critics at home wonder if he is trying to conjure up enough of a sense of crisis to justify continued personal rule when his second term ends next year.

Mr. Marcos has also promised to institute sweeping social reforms. The need for them is undisputed. The Philippines is the classic "soft state." Successive periods of Spanish and American colonial rule helped establish a ruling class which hae been unforgivably indifferent to the claims of common people. Popular struggles against the authorities have bubbled for decades. The most prominent was first organized by the "Huks," a peasant organization created in 1942 to fight the Japanese and their Filipino collaborators. 'The Huks' Communist component ensured that Mania would receive considerable American assistance in the stroggie against them after World War II. On the same basis, the United States has maintained major military bases, Clark Field for the Air Force, Subic Bay for the Navy.

In every quadrennial Filipino election the people have been promised reform. They have never gotten it on any even partially adequate scale. Reorganized as the "People's Liberation Army' and dubhed by their enemies as "Maoist," the Huks are now blamed by President Marcos for his country's latest travails. For him to try to pre-empt the peasant - guerrilla groups with effective reforms, rather than to concentrate on military suppression of them, would be a new departure. Whether Mr. Marcos has the will and power and time to make such an effort will he crucial for the Philippines, and for American position there as w

Cooperative Competition

President Nixon's address to the International Monetary Fund was most welcome, as it clarified what U.S. representatives should have made clear long ago: That the United States will work for a major reform of the world monetary system; that it wants that system to be both equitable and open: and that it seeks, and will itself live by, a "realistic code of conduct for nations" not only in the monetary area but also in foreign trade and investment.

The dangerous implication of the President's earlier formulation of U.S. policy, emphasizing the pursuit of the national interest in a world dominated by five great powersthe United States, Western Europe, Japan, China, and the Soviet Union-was that this country was committed to a highly aggressive strategy that would enable it to triumph over its rivals. This doctrine found an ardent champion in former Secretary of the Treasury Connally.

The President's statement represented a significant modification of that line-a recognition that it makes no sense for friendly nations to conduct economic policy as though it were an extension of war by other means, but rather that each nation has a basic and long-term interest in the prosperity of others as well as itself.

What the nations of the world need to create is a cooperative environment in which their individual businesses and industries ean trade and compete. And what this means is intergovernmental cooperation setting rules of fair play, distinct from intergovernmental rivalry setting the stage for economic warfare.

Economics itself, eaid Mr. Nixon, means "the laws of the house." And he added, "This house we live in-this community of nations-needs far better laws to guide our future economic conduct." It is now up to Secretary of the Treasury Shultz to indicate more specifically what the United States believes those international economic laws should be. By his broad statement of purpose. Mr. Nixon lent urgency and weight to the statement that Mr. Sbultz makes. THE NEW YORK TIMES.

International Opinion

Brandt's Failure

West German Chancellor Willy Brandt asked for a vote of confidence and received a negative response. The "defeat" was sought, and was sealed by the deliberate abstention from voting of Brandt and his cabinet members. This intentional selfdefeat of the Bonn coalition is now being presented as virtually an act of altruism designed to give the West German voters a chance to set matters straight.

This is one of those distorting half-truths. The synthetic act did indeed aim at clearing the path for early new elections, but it was staged under compulsion rather than done voluntarily. The compulsion resides in the fact that, for months now, the present government has lacked a secure basis for continuing to govern. As a government it has failed—there is no other word for it. and no party terminology can transform the fact into something pleasanter.

Where We Are in Vietnam

By Anthony Lewis

NEW YORK—By the end of this week President Nixon will have presided over the Vietnam war for lenger than it took the United States to fight and win World War IL From Pearl Harbor to Japan's surrender it was three years, eight months and one week.

This is, therefore, an appropriste time to look at the record. What have been the costs and the achievements of the Nixon policy in Vietnam over the last three years, eight menths and one week?

The direct cost in American lives is 15.743 men killed in action and 5.164 "nonhostile deaths," as the Pentagon calls them-Americans killed in Indochina by such things as aircraft failure, not enemy action. An-53,375 men have wounded seriously enough to be hospitalized.

Asian military casualties are less certain. South Vietnam has listed more than 80,000 of its own soldiers killed during the Nixon years, and 240,000 wounded; it claims more than 400,000 Communist troops killed and 600.000

Precision Lacking Civilian victims are much more numerous, although again precision is not possible. A Senate subcommittee has made these estimates for the last three and one-half years: 165,000 South Vietnamese civilians killed 400 000 wounded and 1,850,000 made refugees 2,000,000 Cambodians made refugees. There are no reliable figures for North Vietnamese civilian victims.

From President Nixon's inaugurai through the month of August 1972, American planes dropped about 3,750,000 tons of bombs on North and South Victnam, Lacs and Cambodia. The figure is currently running close to 100,000 tons a month. According to cautious estimates by Profs. Arthur H. Westing and E. W. Pfeiffer, the bombs dropped during the Nixon administration have left approximately 7,500,000 graters in Indochina. They have displaced 750 million cubic yards of earth.

Budget figures put the cost of the Vietnam war to the United States since January 1969 at $60 billion. But that does not include much of the cost of outside bases serving the war, or of aid to South Vietnam and Cambodia. The true cost of carrying on the war has probably exceeded $100 billion.

All this has been spent—lives and money and nature-to carry withdrawal from Vietnam.

U.S. ground forces have largely een withdrawn. There were been withdrawn. 542,000 American soldiers in Vietnam in January 1962. Today there are 36,000. But in other respects the trend is different. In January, 1969; there were 72,000 Navy and Air Force men of the Seventh Fleet off Vietnam and at the bomber bases in Thai-Todey the official figure is 84,000. The number serving the war at the B-52 base in Guam and in other places is not disclosed, but it would bring the total of Americans involved in the war in September 1972 to Over 100,000.

The United States is now using 200 B-52s in Vietnam. North and South-almost double the num-ber deployed in January 1969. There are 800 smaller U.S. planes, fighter-hombers, compared with 1,000 to 1,200 in 1969. Four eircraft carriers are operating off Vietnam, twice as many as in January, 1969.

With the high level of American air activity, substantial losses continue. Since the U.S. resumed heavy bombing of the North last April, the Saigon command has reported the loss of 101 Reports from Vietnam put the number of American air-and one week, in the war that still goes on? In the official Washington view the significant accomplishment is that the Saigon government has survived. Despite the massive American ground with-drawal, Gen. Thieu is still in

On the other hand, the greatest use of explosive gover by any country in any war in the history of the world has not crushed the other side, politically or militarily. The Communists have substantial control or influence in many parts of South Vietnam -probably as much there as in 1969, and certainly more in the other countries of Indochina The Times correspondent in Saigen wrote this month that the Communists' "military position in the South is vastly better than it was a year ago and is virtually unchallenged in Laos and Cambodia."

No Stability

In short, three years, eight months and one week of American fighting in Indochina have not achieved stability on our terms. The reason is no eccret: We are trying to impose an alien system on a people with a long history of resistance to alien intrusion, against a political force that is the legitimate representative of Vietnamese nationalism. But it has been a substantial failure in its apparent chief objective to halt the operation of the textile industry there. In a dispersed and largely bombproof fashion, the industrial community continues to operate. Even the passenger train to and from Hanci continues to run, slipping in and out of the bombed-out Nam Diph station after nightfall. Nam Dinh, built under the French in 1900, lies in the midst of the rice paddies of the Red River Delta, 45 miles southeast of Hanol in Nam Ha province. Its normal population of 120,000 now is 90 percent evacuated, of-

School Wrecked

Shattered textile machinery could be seen in the wreckage of what officials said had been a vocational school for training textile workers.

Within a block or two of the factory, officials pointed out the wreckage of what they said had been a municipal cultural center, a workers' club, an open-air bandstand, a Buddhist pagoda, an exhibition hall, a post office and a library. They said those buildings were destroyed by bombing attacks on May 13, June 11 and June 20 of this year.

A three-story building several blocks away, described as part of a workers' housing project, was wrecked by a bomb that they said hit it July 28 of this year. Farther from the factory, a distance of perhaps a half mile stood the remains of the hospital. Two buildings described as the pediatrics department were wrecked, one of them apparently by a direct hit. Officials said it was struck by one of 10 bombs dropped on the area on June 20. "The staff and the patients had already been evacuated two days before the bombs hit," member of a 20-man hospital militia unit said. The group, armed with rifles, was all that had remained behind. "We went into the shelter when we heard the planes. No one was infured." he said.

The nearest anti-aircraft artillery had been outside the hospital grounds, ha said. None could be seen inside the compound.

The chief of the foreign affairs burean of the provincial administration committee, Tran Hung, said that the factory and city had been bombed 40 times in the Johnson administration, starting June 8, 1965.

Rebuilding Started

"After Johnson stopped, we began to rebuild," he said. "But we were always on guard and did not concentrate all the machinery back in the factory. True, the "ransom" policy applies, in practice, mostly to Jews. But this is not because of anti-Jewish discrimination, rather the contrary. Nobody else is allowed to emigrate, payment or no payment. The few non-lews who managed to obtain an exit visa have done it by "finding" more or less fictitious Jewish relatives in Israel.

Life is not easy for Jews in the Soviet Union. But how about the Crimeen Taters, who are not even permitted to settle in their homeland (the Crimean panin-. sula) within the Soviet Union, let alone go abroad? EW PERSPECTIVES—French Culture Ministry artists have superimposed new huidings t La Défense over the existing view up the Champs Elysées, with one huilding shell ready in place. In Complex Just West of Paris

French Due to Approve Hated Skyscrapers

By James Goldsborough PARIS, Sept. 26 (IHT).—The vernment is expected to give ial approval this week to a oject that nobody in the govnment likes: the skyscraper emplex just west of Paris known s La Défense.

Until several weeks ago there was a good chance that the nultibilion-franc complex would be stopped by outraged Parisians -some of them officials-who believed that the bullders had gone too far. There was even a strong chance that the one existing tower, which already has reached 214 meters, would be decapitated, cut down to 142

That operation alone would 1976 cost at least 100 billion rancs, but it seemed that the finance Ministry was ready to ay. "A monumental error," said 'inance Minister Valery Giscard Estaing of the project when he aw the tower. Jacques Duhaiel. the culture minister, was ven more explicit: "A horror." fr. Duhamel's ministry began n active campaign to convince he government that the Paris byline must be saved no matter chat the cost. 'One More Scandal'

"Finally," said sourcone close to Mr. Dubamel. "It was the Aranda scandal affair that beat The government simply dcesn't have the courage to stop the project now. It would be one mere scandal just as the election campaign approaches."

Mr. Aranda, a former public works official, has been giving newspapers documents that he says implicate 43 public personalities in various scandals.

For the Culture Ministry, La Defense is the supreme architectural insult to Paris-worse even than the Maine-Montparnasse tower. The ministry says La Defense destroys what has been the city'e most magnificent perspec-tive, from the Louvre up the Champs-Elysées, through the Arc de Triomphe and to, in the Cul-ture Ministry's words, "the heavens beyond."

When La Défense is finished, instead of the heavens, the viewcr from Place de la Concorde will be able to see from various angles at least six skyscrapers towering over the Arc. And cutting across its middle he will see two 132-meter-high buildings with mirror valls in which Paris, from the Arc, will be able to look at it-

"Actually, the mirror would be funny if it were not so serious," said the man from the ministry. They are just now discovering that there will be a heat problem. and that when the sun is out it is going to be very hot at La De-

Project Dates to 1964 The origins of the project go back to 1964 when the govern-ment chose La Défense for a huge office complex. Aware of the sensitive problem of perspectives, officials put a limit of 142 meters on the buildings, which meant that no building, as seen from was removed. "That was the error." says the Culture Ministry, "The buildings could have spread ont to the sides, or behind, You can't ruin the Paris perspectives simply because Mr. Flat wants his building to be higher than anyone eles."

Look Into the Future

But it was not until lest April that the Culture Ministry acted. Mr. Duhamel, crossing the Tuileries to his office, looked up and there was the shell of the Groupement des Assurances Nationales (GAN) buffding. Giscard d'Estaing, whose office is in the Louvre and who had approved the 1968 decision doubling the interior space, apparently discovered the tower only this month. "We did not want that," he wrote in a published letter,

Both the Finance and Culture Ministries set to work on projects to limit the height of the buildthe existing GAN shell. Early this month it appeared as though the Defense project would be radically altered, with GAN eut back to the original 142meter limit. Then came the Aranda affair

New York Entertainment

This is how critics rate new stage productions in New York:

"That Championship Season," a tragicomedy by Jason Miller about the reunion of an old high school backetball team, which opened on Broadway at the Booth Theater, is the first hit of the season, reports Clive Barnes of The New York Times, "I admired the play when I first saw it at the (Off-Broadway) Public Theater, but it is a deeper and better play than I first thought It has more layers to it, and much more passion than I originally comprehended," Barnee writes. "When I first saw it I said 'Wowl' Now I think I can say not only 'Wow!' but also 'Ahl'" Barnes also praises A.J. > "The Dybbuk," the play by Solomon Ansky, is being produced by the Jewish State Theater of Romania at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. This Romanian production, with its simple, almost diagrammatic sets consisting largely of Nevelson-like boxes, is more subdued in its interpretation than many," Clive Barnes wrote in The Times, "Everything about the production, from the slow opening in the temple with its rather excessive stylization, to the quiet conclusion, concentrates on the simple unfolding of a legend, and glories in just those details of Jewish life that Ansky himself was at pains to portray. The acting was most accomplished and the company clearly work as an ensemble." "We Bombed in New Haven," Joseph Heller's play about pilots being killed in a nameless war, is being seen in a new production by Peter John Bailey at the Circle-in-the-Square. "Certainly, Heller's message that killing people is wrong and that war is no kind of game to be taken lightly is timely, true and altogether admirable," says Clive Barnes in The Times. "It is also a little obvious. And its obviousness is remorse-lessly stressed by a production that takes unsubtlety to ridiculous limits. A group of actors is in a theater performing a play about a group of actors performing another play about a war. The idea has little finesse to it, but in its earlier productions the sincer-ity of Heller's thought and the theatricality of his vision made the play at least viable." The new production, bowever, "seems to hammer home the play's weak-nesses in a most astonishing fashion." The acting is "bland," though the actors are "clearly

Colosseum Closed

"While stands the Colosseum, Rome shall stand, when falls the Colosseum Rome shall fall, and when Rome falls, the world."— Encient saying of pilgrims to Rome.

ROME, Sept. 26 (UPI).—It was built to last forever. But modern traffic and weather caused its columns to shake and cornices to crumble and foday the Colosseum stood empty, quiet, closed.

Rome's superintendent of antiquities ordered the huge elliptical arena built 20 centuries ago closed and had it cordoned off for fear of falling stones. A commission studying the condition of Rome's most famous monument urged that it be restored in such a way as to keep its "integrity" but also so that it would be absolutely safe for the public.

The Forum and the Palatine Hill were closed briefly last week after the commission decided they, too, were unsafe. The commission cited traffic as one of the causes behind the erosion of the monumental reminders of Roman glory.

Experts are studying a way to keep one entrance to the Colosseum, built under the emperor Vespasian in AD 75, open so that visitors could at least get a panoramic view of the scene where gladiators, wild animals, and Christians lost their lives by the hundred. No plans have been announced to isolate the monument from traffic-it is in the center of a rotary. But today, the Colosseum was deserted, and tourists outside shook their heads in disbelief when told they could not go in.

PARIS, (IHT).—The cult of the are grilled relentlessly about Symbolism and Psychological Motivation.)

The French devotees of the bande dessinée, carried away by the wave of enthusiasm for American comic strips (preferably old ones) seem to work on the theory that, in reviving them for the delight of a new generation (or for the benefit of an older generation that missed the symbolism and psychological motivation) you can't go wrong—that any American strip is a winner.

An Illustration This of course, is not true and to illustrate the point unwittingly a French magazine called Phenix ("revue internationale de la bande dessinee") has just come up with an issue that features a loser: Pete the Tramp, alias Le Père Lacloche, Pete (as younger readers may not know) dates from around 1930, when Charles D. Russell signed a contract with King Features Syndicate for a daily strip. It's a true cartoon strip—unlike strips such as Tarzan or Rip Kirby, which are adventure stories illustrated in a realistic style—and Pete himself is a solid, well-drawn character with much comic potential. The trouble with the strip is thatthough some fans will undoubtedly contest this-Pete was neither very funny nor did he, on the other hand, creep into your heart. In a typical sequence of nine panels, we see him working out with dumbbells, in the company of a fellow tramp, doing calis-thenics and roadwork. Finally they sit down before a checker board and Pete says, "Well then, let's have no alibis about not being in shape for the match!"

Is this the stuff American avatars, on any other kind, are made

In an accompanying article, Edouard François says that Russell's line is "very sure, very alert," and that his drawings are free of embellishment. All this is true -the strip is executed masterful-ly. But Pete himself is a nonstarter, and should have been left to moulder decently in his paper grave. What he lacks is the quality possessed by such contempo-rary strip heroes as Jiggs, or Major Hoople, or the Wizard of Id: a dimension deeper than the

The true comic-strip artistspeople like George McManus, Winsor McCay (creator of Little Nemo) and George Herrimanwere extremely gifted cartoonists who invented private worlds as tangible as those of any novelist or playwright. These were worlds that a child (or an unjaded adult) could enter with no more effort than it takes to turn a newspaper page. The cultists, who tend to fog with mystique the outlines of a vigorous popular art form that doesn't need impresarios, have lost sight of (if they indeed ever saw) the element that makes the comic strip so captivating—the joyous feeling of picking up a newspaper page. brightly colored in fragrant printers' ink, and meeting old. friends in an enchanted world.

This happy state extends also, at its hest, to the comic strip's linear descendant, the animated cartoon. A brilliant example was recently shown on French television—an American importation called "Points and Counterpoints." Featuring Dustin Hoffman, who also wrote much of the material, as the voice of a cartoon-character telling his son a bedtime story, the program reached a towering level of artistry and ingenuity. It is almost certain, one would think, to win all the TV prizes in sight. The story is an uncomplicated one, about a boy who explores a ed, including the inhabitants heads. He acquires a pointy do; named Arrow and, since he himself is round-headed, teaches a lesson in tolerance before find ing his way home. There is also a beautiful pop-music score, the lyrics of which are sung by Harr Nilsson (famous for his record c "Everybody's Talkin`" from "Mi: night Cowboy") and the integra ed effect of words, music ar images is almost operatic.

The drawings, in a spiky lin reminiscent of two English ca toonists, Ronald Searle and th late Gerald Hofinung, are by artist, presumably America whose name I couldn't find I the TV program listings or in th fast-moving screen credits. ## Patachou's Sparkling New Show her tousled gold hair, rougish smile and champagne sparklehas returned in triumph to the Théâtre des Variétés where she is head mistress of an entertaining variety revue. She, of course, is the star, but she has gathered some pleasing numbers to round

Clad in an azure jump suit to match her eyes, she comes on at the outset to explain her indeci-sion as to how to make her entrance, demonstrating various methods. That she makes it consummately goes without saying and then she graciously introduces her companions, who occupy the evening's first half.

The rollerskaters, Claudia and Milko, spin about and a British lass, Victoria, warbles "Danny Boy" and "Molly Malone" in both English and French, accompanying herself on the guitar. Part II is pure Patachou. She has never been more scintillating as with mischievous magic she runs the range from earthy humor to wistful sentiment. She excels in nuances, in sous-entendus, Consider the comedy of her weary complaints about her irrepressi-ble relative in "Ma Soeur" and the comedy of her resignation to being wedded to a chickenchasing mate in "Les Femmes de Mon Mari." It was directed and designed by the painter Frantz Salieri. One of the best entertainments in Paris, it will soon be the talk of the town.

It is quite unlike other spectacles of the genre in that it contains a minimum of the customary camping and is, in large measure, a serious enterprise. Its beginnings are familiar with the boys doing chorus girl rontines and imitating a grotesque elder dame vocalizing as her attendant musicians look on in awe. But by the time you have reached the Hamburg dock number you will be unless I am a very poor judge of reactions—completely hooked. This tableau of the sailors and streetwalkers cavorting to the cannon song from the Weill-Brecht "Threepenny Opera" and the following "Blue Angel" bit hold one rapt and give a foretaste of what is to come. ## Wall St. Volume Rises But Prices End Mixed

By Alexander R. Hammer

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 (NYT) .-New York Stock Exchange prices did nothing spectacular today but did manage to finish mixed in stepped-up trading, which some analysis termed mildly "bullisb."

One analyst put it this way: Volume picked up although prices showed minor changes for the most part." He added that this pickup in volume indicated that some "investors have remined some interest in the mar .t after having been on the sidelines for weeks."

Impetus for the increased trading apparently stemmed from the news of new secret Vietnam peace talks in Pans and U.S. proposals for world monetary reform at the International Monetary Fund meetings now in progress in Washington.

Turnover on the Big Board expanded to 13.15 million shares from 10.92 million yesterday. Today's volume was the largest since Sept. 19, when 13.30 million shares changed hands.

The Dow Jones industrial average finished up 0.83 at 936.56.

After opening lower, the market started to move higher on the news that presidential aide ed to get from these carefully-tuned experimental systems to mass-produced hardware that not only meets the federal require-nents but also functions properly in the bands of our customers."

Mr. Cole listed GM's requirements for levels of fuel contaminants as: An average of 0.03 to 0.07 grams of lead per gallon, 0.03 percent by weight of sulphur and no more than 0.005 grams of phosphorus per gallon. He noted the Environmental Protection Agency has not ret determined prices increased after Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz spelled out U.S. nolicy on interna-tional monetory reform. Brokers noted that his proposals may provide the possibility of progress toward solving monetary problems that have long troubled investurs.

The most volatile issue was Honeywell, which traced between a high of 142 1.4 and a low of 128 1 4 before closing at 130, down 10 1.8, in active trading. The weakness in the issue resulted from a statement by John W. Morrison, vice-president, that third-quarter earnings are expected to drop below year-ago profits. The glamour and electronic issues were the best performers. In the former category, Bur-roughs gained 2 to 215, Digital Equipment, 1 3.8 to 88 3.8, Fairchild Camera, 1 3 4 to 43 5.8, Schlumberger, 5 1/4 to 223 3.4, Polaroid, 2 3.4 to 113 3.4 and Coca Cola, 1 3.4 to 136 1 4.

Heavily-traded American Telephone eased 1/8 to 47 1,'4.

Prices eased in light trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex index oipped 0.02 to 25.97, while declines outscored advances, 485 to 351. Selected issues bucked the trend. Turnover was 2.63 million shares, up from 2.41 million yesterday.

LONDON, Sept. 26 | AP-DJ'. -Net profit at Rowntrec Mac-Kintosh rose 61.1 percent in the first balf, to £2.9 million from £1.8 million : the same period a year earlier.

Reporting this today, the ford and confectionery group said the interim divideod will be raised to 2.5 pence from the previous Rowntree said sales rosc 24,9 percent to £68.8 million from £55.1 million a year earlier.

The company added that second-half results will show a significant increase from the same period in 1971.

One of Switzerland's Major Banks Reports

The second quarter of 1972 once again saw extremely lively activity in all sectors of Credit Suisse operations. The volume of international transactions was high.

Yet, it is to be expected that the monetary defense measures instituted by the Swiss government will make themselves felt the most in the international field. Nevertheless, the long-established business tradition, the qualified staff and the welldeveloped facilities of Credit Suisse, founded in 1856, and whose network of foreign representative offices will be further expanded by a new branch office in Los Angeles, will continue to ensure the efficient and conscientious customer service despite these new conditions.

TENDERS INVITED FOR MAJORITY INTEREST

Acting on behalf of clients whose aims are dictated by estate planning requirements, we invite tenders from parties interested in the acquisition for cash or for part cash and part shares, of the majority interest in a large operating and investment company.

The company, which is incorporated in the Province of Ontario, Canada, is engaged directly or through subsidiaries, in a wide range of activities in Canadian industry and commerce. After a record year of earnings in 1971, it would appear that the company will equal or better its earnings for the current year. Management is very optimistic in respect of future prospects and no change in management personnel or policies is contemplated.

The principal shareholders require improved liquidity for estate purposes, but would be willing to continue to participate with an aggressive but responsible partner.

A requirement has been stipulated of a minimum of 50% cash, provided the securities offered in addition are participating equity shares. Certain other stipulations respecting continuity of policy will be required to be met.

The company's consolidated statements show ... Total Assets-in excess of $150,000,000 in excess of $ 5,000,000 Net Earnings—

Tender proposals should be received by the undersigned on or before October 30s

Highest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted, but it is anticipated that response tu all tenders will be made not later than November 15, 1972.

For complete information concerning the company contact Mr. James G. Haxton, Senior Vice-President, Montreal Trust Company, P.O. Box 1909, Station B, Montreal 110, Canada.

On the diagramed deal with spades trumps, the big hand made no tricks at all. Holding 31 high-card pointsthe hand of a lifetime-West opened two clubs to show a giant hand when South had passed—rightly, since no pre-emptive bid was suitable and action could be taken later. After East gave the negative two-diamond response to two clubs, South had his first chance to show his distributional assets and quietly bid two spades. West closed the bidding, or so be thought, with six diamonds. This seemed like the right contract, since the chance that East held the spade ace was negligible,

North was delighted with this development since he held a certain trump trick. He considered doubling, but decided not to, partly because there was a faint chance that East-West could find a better slam spot, but partly also because the double

EDWIN MULLHOUSE

The Life and Death of an American Writer (1943-1954) by Jeffrey Cartwright

By Steven Millhauser. Alfred A. Knopf. 305 pp. $6.95.

Reviewed by William Hjortsberg

WE all know Fats Waller's reply to the well-dressed woman who leaned over his viano to ask him to define jazz. His answer applies to similar questions about art. "If you have to ask you'll never know." Yet people go on asking—and, though the answer will never come, occasionally, like whacks from the Zen master's cane pointing the way to satori. unexpected cines are illuminated. Steven Millhauser's deft first novel (which takes the form of a biography of an 11-year old artist by his scholarly best friend) offers a substantial amount of truth disguised as elegant arti-

The child as artist: Edwin Mullhouse is the author of a bril-Hant novel, "Cartoons," begun when he was 9 and completed only six months before his death on his 11th birthday. His story is told by his lifelong friend, Jeffrey Cartwright, a child gifted with both total recall and an innate critical point-of-view. Along the way, we briefly meet 7-year-old Edward Penn, a mural-ist of genius. Stop for a momeot and consider the child as artist. In a sense every child is an artist. Just as the intricately-contrived private lunacies of medmen are at heart one with the creative act, so too, the uninhibited crayon scrawls of an infant are the joyously self-indulgent motions of an artist. Art is a magic act. The Cro-Magnon of Lascaux knew that; Picasso knows it too. Children dwell in a world of magic, At will, any child can conjure up surroundings more desirable than the material world of his clders; he, too, is a magician, an artist.

Although Steven Millhauser knows this, his narrator, young Jeffrey Cartwright, does not. Disappointed by Edwin Mullhouse's answers to his queries into the meaning of "Cartoons," he writes: "Either he did not understand the nature and meaning of his book, and its relation to life, or else his mind grappled with these matters in so curious and personal a manner as to be unable to communicate its findings to intellects organized in a more commonplace way." Poor Jeffrey mises the point. Sadly,

But what of Steven Millhauser's novel, considered as a work of Certainly, it displays an enviable amount of craft, the harsh discipline that carves through the scar-tissue of personality painfully developed during a process known as "growing-up." Only by the slow acquisition of craft is it possible to return to the medchild-artist who got lost somewhere in the shuf-fie. In spite of Jeffrey Cart-In spite of Jeffrey Cartwright's occasionally pedanti tone (the tedium of the devic might be likened to the sting of the master's cane), "Edwin Muli house" evokes the world of chil dren with delicacy and precision

Millhauser's eye is trained t observe with a child's perception: He appreciates the mystic impor tance of trivial objects (baseba cards, homemade Valentiner comic books) and he s-es the in tensity of colors and textures in a world still new. His ear is at tuned to the nuances of children speech from the attempts of preschooler to imitate his fathe quoting Chaucer (Wanna oprosure as sodal) to the roundabou formalities of two second-grades discussing a classroom romance ("Was that stupid girl there to "What stupid girl?" I don't know, Trudy?" "Yes sh was there." "Somebody ought t kill that stupid Trudy. The stupid jerk.") Disbelief is suc cessfully suspended. The author

If this seems a bal-loon easily punctured, it is to the book's credit that it succeeds as a story in spite of the satirical

Steven Millhauser has written a rare and carefully evoked novel He tells us quite a bit about the nature of children and supplies us with a few useful clues about art in the process: "The true ar-tist is not an inventor but a finder and user": "genius ... is the retention of the capacity to be obsessed"; "it is possible that a work of art is born not of strength but of weakness, of weakness trying to become strength." If the story is sometimes slow, it is never uninteresting, and the high points soar with the breath-beld clarity of true fiction. You won't find the plot in this review; only your bookseller can supply that. The title about sums it up for the pilltakers.

Soviet coach Vsevolod Bobrov said, "Our defense was hetter than in previous games but we still made some mistakes and one cost us the winning goal. We lost two very good games by one goal. That doesn't mean it will demoralize us."

Asked to comment on tonight's rough play, Sinden said:

"By our standards, there was no rough play. The Russians fore-checked more like National Hockey League pros and used their bodies a lot more tonight."

The referees, Rudolf Batva of Czechoslovakia and Uve Dalberg of Sweden, kept the game under tight control, handing out 18

In the Canadians' victory over the Soviet Union Sunday, the Canadian team protested the refereeing of the two West Ger-mans who handled the game. The referees "will not be used for the rest of the series," said Team Canada coach Harry Sinden.

After Sunday's game, Sinden criticized the work of Baader and Kompalla as "the worst I've ever seen" and said the two were "incompetent."

The referees shook hands with the Russian players after the 3-2 victory by Team Canada, but turned their backs on Canadian players seeking to ahake hands. For tonight's game, Canada had the choice of officials. By agreement, the Russians will have the choice for the final game.

Weiskopf Shows Bookies Odds May Be Wrong

TURNEERRY, Scotland, Sept. 28 (UPI).—Tom Weiskopf today posted a warning to his rivals and gave the bookies something to think about on the eve of Europe's richest golf tournament, the £51,000 ($150,000) John Player

Weiskopf, 28, among a bunch of Americans chasing the £15,000 ($37,500) first prize, tamed the 7,060-yard par-71 course with a 65 that included seven hirdies. For the first time in a major golf tournament a betting shop has been set up on the course to take bets from spectators on the field of 31.

Weiskopf is among a group including fellow-Americans Billy Casper, Arnold Palmer and Doug Sanders, quoted at 16-1, which on today's performance looks a trifle too generous from the bookies' point of view.

Palmer parinered Weiskopf against Sanders and Gay Brewer, who was listed at 14-1, and de spite experimenting with several putters to try and regain his "touch." Arnie shot a 68.

United States World Cup team's South African Gary Player is the bookles' favorite for the 72-hole tournament at 6-1, followed by Britain's Tony Jacklin at 8-1. Top-rated American is Jerry Heard, winner of two tournaments and $132,000 this season, at 12-1 along with Tommy Aaron. Then comes Australian Peter Thomson, five times British Open winner who last week won the Wills

Chiefs Defeat Saints On Last-Minute Kick

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 26 (UFI:.—Jan Stenerud kicked a 22-yard field goal with 1 minute 21 seconds left in the game last night to give the Kansas Clty Chiefs a 20-17 victory over the New Orleans Saints.

Stenerud had earlier kicked a 12-yard field goal and Len Dawson completed touchdown passes to Willie Frazier and Otis Taylor. The Saints, capitalizing on three Chiefs fumbles, scored on e 31yard field goal by Charlie Durkee, a 35-yard fumble return by Doug Wyatt and an eight-yard pass from Archle Manning to tight end Dave Parks.

The Saints' first opportunity came when Larry Marshall fumbled on a kickoff in the second quarter. Ray Hester recovered on the Chiefs' 27. The Saints couldn't move the ball so Durkee kicked his 31-yard field goal with 12:37 left in the second quarter.

On the next series, Kansas City drove from its 23 but stalled on the New Orleans five. Stenerus tied it at 3-3 with a 12-yard field goal with 6:44 left in the

With 4:33 left in the quarter, Chiefs rookie Jeff Kinney fumbled at the 30 and Wyatt, the Saints safety, picked it up and ran it down the sidelines 35 yard: for the score. The Chiefs tied it 10-10 with 43 seconds remaining in the half hy driving 65 yards in 12 plays for a touchdown. The score came when Dawson passed four yards to Frazier in the end zone.

The Human Side

WASHINGTON-Whenever we ace people like Marcus of gin. Welby, Perry Mason, Matt Dillon and other comparably splendid professional men on television,

We see them at their absolute best. This is only natural Everybody smiles when he knows he is having his pic-ture taken. Unfortunately, this gives us a distorted impression

Baker of the lives of these important men. Like the rest of us, they too have their bad days. Right now, for example, Welby, Mason and Dillon are embroiled in one of those disagreeable affairs which are all too commonplace in less telegenic lives.

The trouble began last fall when Marshal Dillon shot himself in the foot practicing his fast draw. Although television viewers would never guess it, the marshal's draw had been slowing down in recent years. In fact, of 103 street showdowns in the previous two years, Dillon had lost 72, none of which, naturally, was photographed for television,

He had, nevertheless, absorbed a lot of lead for a man his sge and had suffered some serious wounds. Nine times he had interrupted divorces at "General Hospital" for emergency blood trans-fusious and bullet removal. Once he even had Ben Casey remove a bullet that had lodged in his central nervous system. In any event, when the marshal's fast-draw practice resulted in a gunshot wound in the fourth toe of the right foot, he decided to go to Marcus Welby, MD: Unfortunately for Dillon, Welby was not on television that day.

"Do you have an appointment, Marshal?" asked Welhy's regular receptionist, the one who is never permitted to be seen on Dillon apologized. The receptionist told him that, in that case, he would have to wait. When Welby arrived from the golf course, the marshal had passed out. The reason is disputed. Dillon contends it was from loss of blood; Dr. Welby's recep-

By Russell Baker tionist, that it was from intake

> Whatever the reason, Dillon was placed on Welby's operating table after the receptionist said, "He was complaining about his foot." Removing the unconscious Dillon's left shoe, Welby immediately noticed an acute bunion condition, which he treated sur-

The marshal was furious when he recovered consciousness. He refused payment of Welby's bill for $250 for bunion surgery and threatened to sus.

Welby ordered his bill collector to go to work on Dillon. The bill collector began phoning the marshal in the middle of the night. Dillon retalisted at first by ticketing Welby's car whenever he saw it double-parked at the country club. When Welby's bill collector began telling all the gummen in the territory that the marshal was a deadbeat who wouldn't pay his bills, Dillon sought legal aid. He went to see Perry Mason. He said he wanted to sue Welby for slander, libel, defamation of character and removing a bunion without a permit. Mason coolly pointed out that such suits were very hard to win. The big-money awards from juries, he said, came out of malpractice suits.

He had Dillon enter "General Hospital" for a thorough cheek-up. The findings left Mason ecstatic. "We've got Welby for every cent he'e worth," Mason

Se.d. "What's wrong?" Dillon asked. "When he operated," Mason said, "he left a sponge in your brain."

Dillon explained that this must have been the work of Ben Casey long ago. "You don't have to tell that to the jury," Mason replied. "Welby's lawyers will never locate Casey. I'll have Paul Drake see if he has any reruns playing anywhere in the country, and, if so, we will have them destroyed."

"Ain't that what we in Dodge call dirty pool, Mr. Mason?" tile mershal asked. Mason said yes, it certainly was, but life was a messy proposition sometimes, and people, after all, would be people. The case still hasn't come to court. There have been too many television cameras around lately.

New World-

When It Was Really New

By Hank Burchard

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (WP).—In a cornfield along the banks of the James River in Virginia, anthropologists from the College of William and Mary are digging up evidence of what life was like in the New World when it was really new.

Flowerdew Hundred plantation, an upriver offshoot of the 1607 Jamestown settlement, is considered tha most important 17th-century site found so far in North America. Data gleaned from the dig will go far toward supplementing the scanty written records settlers were too busy surviving to keep full records.

The plantation survived the great massacre of English colonists by Indians in 1622 and was abandoned a few years later. Consequently, the early foundations were not disturbed or covered by later buildings. Excavations under the direction of the William and Mary anthropology department, headed by Prof. Norman Barka, began this spring.

So far, 18 early 17th-century sites have been found in the settlement, including a stone house foundation which may be the oldest remaining one of its type in America. Other finds include a fort with more than 4,000 feet of palisade, gun parts, cannon balls, armor, tools, kitchen middens, hardware and glassware, pottery, iron and pewter from England, Germany, Holland and China, as well as the probable site of the first American windmill.

The finds predate the bulk of those from Jamestown, because the original site there has been washed away, along with the remains of most of the early outposts along the James. The shoreline along Flowerdew Hundred is protected from erosion by Windmill Point, which also gave the settlers command of the river for several miles, lessening the danger of raids by Indians or Spaniards.

For the past five months Leverette Gregory of the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg has spent all his time supervising the dig.

The people who lived there "were incompetents, mostly." he said. "The first few years they probably starved. After Capt, John Smith got them organized, they probably had enough to eat, but it was not a good life in the beginning.

"Except that it was better than the life they had known in England. They were beggars, or criminals, or people faced with the choice of going to debtors' prison or to Virginia as indentured servants. Ignorant, superstitious, fearful, fractious, Most of the leaders were not much better. If the Indians hadn't taught them how to survive, they wouldn't have.

"I have a great deal of pride in American heritage. Kids are being taught now that too much patriotism is not good, but for a handful of people with hardly any skills or useful knowledge to come out here into a wilderness and build a society—that's something worth studying, and remembering, and honoring."

Flowerdew Hundred was patented in 1618 by Sir George Yeardley, governor and captain general of Virginia. It originally embraced about 1,000 acres and was named after his wife, Temperance Flowerdow (fleur Dieu, flower of God). Flowerdew and nearby Maycock Plantations were granted by King James I, ruler of Virginia "by the grace of God," and —more to the point—by King Powhatan, ruler in fact of the lands of the Weanoc (Weyanoke) Indian nation.

Powhatan soon realized his error, and in 1622 made war, on the settlers who were pouring into the James Biver valley.

Several hundred were killed, including six at Flowerdew and four at Maycock. Mr. Gregory thinks the massacre may explain some of the construction at Flowerdew.

"Flowerdew and Maycock (which also is being excavated) were two of the seven outposts that were strong enough to withstand attack. People must have flocked in They had to have shelter. "Here"-he indicated dark outlines on the ground-"we see that the main house was enlarged, almost doubled, but with-out any stone or brick foundation. Why, when such pains were taken with the foundations of the original dwelling, would they tack on other rooms? "I think it must have been because they needed to provide shelter, fast, for the refugees."

This game of puzzling out why the people at Flowerdew did things will keep the William and Mary team busy for years. The anthropologists will have the money they need to complete the studies because the project is being underwritten by a foundation called Southside Historical Sites, Inc.

The founders are Mr. and Mrs. David A. Harrison III. owners of Flowerdew Hundred. They not only have given the diggers carte blanche to destroy their cornfields but are paying them to do it.

"I forget sometimes that this place doesn't belong to me," Mr. Gregory said. "David Harrison says it doesn't belong to him, either. It belongs to the people of Virginia and America." Eventually there may be a reconstruction of the settlement, open to the public. Authentic recreation of the site is possible because very soon after it was built the settlement moved and the early foundations have remained intact for 350 years.

"I don't think they were driven out of here by Indians," Mr. Gregory said. 'It probably was the flooding you get there from high water—we've had to pump it out five times—or maybe these damn mosquitoes from the swamp,"

Todd, 20, had a couple of laughs on his first jump. He was blown into-electric power lines at Caloundra, near Brisbane. He bounced off one cable then fell between two others that caught his chute. Todd dropped to the ground unscathed as two of the lines broke in a shower of sparks that set dry grass afire. Fire-men put out the blaze, linemen restored power to the town of Beerwan, and two hours later Todd completed his second jump without mishap.

When Darlene Bish sold her house in Indiana, Pennsylvania, seven years ago, she told tha new owner, Helen Flick, to keep an eye out for a diamond ring she had lost. Last week, Mrs. Flick found the ring while gardening: it was caught in the roots of a weed she pulled.
